Counting Our Losses

Reflecting on Change, Loss, and Transition in Everyday Life

Edited by Darcy Harris, and Eunice Gorman, both at the University of Western Ontario, Canada

This text is intended to be a resource for clinicians who work with clients dealing with non-death and ambiguous losses (those that are not the result of a death, but of events that are difficult to define concretely and associated with grief or change) in their lives. It explores adjustment to change, transition, and loss from the perspective of the latest thinking in bereavement theory and research. The specific and unique aspects of different types of loss are discussed, such as infertility, aging, chronic illnesses and degenerative conditions, divorce and separation, immigration, adoption, loss of beliefs, and loss of employment. The contributing authors consider these from an experiential perspective, rather than a developmental one, in order to focus on the key elements of each loss as it may be experienced at any point in the lifespan.

CONTENTS: Introduction. Part I: The Experience of Non-death Loss and Grief. Non-finite and Ambiguous Loss. Chronic Sorrow: Development of a Paradigm and Unique Aspects. The Social Context of Loss and Grief. Part II: Loss of the View of the World and/or Others. Loss of Safety and Security. Relational Losses. Part III: Loss of Meaning or of a Sense of Justice in the World. Existential Losses. Part IV: Loss of the View of Self as Worthy or Valuable. Loss of Identity. Loss of Functionality. Part V: Coping with Losses. Adaptation, Resilience, and Growth after Loss. Meaning-making and the Assumptive World. Integrating Loss into Everyday Life.

Grief After Suicide

Understanding the Consequences and Caring for the Survivors

Edited by John R. Jordan, The Family Loss Project, Massachusetts, USA, and John L. McIntosh, Indiana University at South Bend, USA

There are over 30,000 suicide deaths each year in the United States alone, and the numbers in other countries suggest that suicide as a cause of death will be around for the foreseeable future. A successful suicide leaves behind more victims than just the individual, as family, friends, co-workers, and the community can be impacted in many different and unique ways following a suicide. And yet there are very few professional resources that provide the necessary background, research, and tools to effectively work with the survivors of a suicide.

This edited volume addresses the need for an up-to-date, professionally oriented summary of the clinical and research literature on the impact of suicide bereavement on survivors.

CONTENTS: Part I: The Impact of Suicide. Jordan, McIntosh, Is Suicide Bereavement Different? The Case for Specialized Study of Survivors. McIntosh, Jordan, The Impact of Suicide on Adults. Cerel, The Impact of Suicide on Children and Families. McGann, Gutin, The Impact of Suicide on Care Givers. McIntosh, The Impact of Suicide Attempts. Chow, Yip, Clark, Dyregrov, Grad, Agee, International Perspectives on Suicide Bereavement. Part II: Helping Survivors. Jordan, McMenamy, Mitchell, Feigelman, McIntosh, Research on Survivor Needs and Interventions. Gutin, McGann, Jordan, Guidelines for Postvention Care after the Suicide of a Client. Shuurman, Organizational Postvention. Jordan, Principles of Grief-counseling. Principles of Grief-counseling with Child and Adolescent Survivors. Jordan, Neimeyer, A Narrative Approach to Healing after a Suicide. Jordan, Harpel, Group Work with Suicide Survivors. Campbell, Bolton, Marshal, Jordan, Hurtig, Kates, Harpel, Archibald, Koenig, Farberow, Swartz, Promising Programs of Support for Survivors. Part III: Conclusion. McIntosh, Jordan, Going Forward: A Research Agenda for Suicide Survivors. Jordan, McIntosh, Harpel, Campbell, Bolton, Linn-Gust, A Call to Action: Building Clinical and Programmatic Support.

Parenting after the Death of a Child A Practitioner's Guide

Jennifer L. Buckle, Memorial University, Newfoundland, Canada, and Stephen Fleming, York University, Toronto, Canada

The death of a child has a tremendous and overwhelming impact on parents and siblings, completely altering the psychological landscape of the family. In the aftermath of such a tragedy, parents face the challenge of not only dealing with their own grief, but also that of their surviving children. How can someone attempt to cease parenting a deceased child while maintaining this role with his/her other children? Is it possible for a mother or father to effectively deal with feelings of grief and loss while simultaneously helping their surviving children?

Parenting after the Death of a Child: A Practitioner's Guide addresses this complex and daunting dilemma. Following on the heels of a qualitative research study that involved interviewing bereaved parents, both fathers and mothers, Buckle and Fleming have put together several different stories of loss and recovery to create an invaluable resource for clinicians, students, and grieving parents. The authors present the experience of losing a child and its subsequent impact on a family in a novel and effective way, demonstrating the strength and importance of their book for the counseling field.

CONTENTS: Setting the Stage: Impact of the Death of a Child on Parents.

Discovering the Theory of Bereaved Parenting: Method, Participants, Overview of Results. Part I: Devastation. The Devastation of Parental Bereavement.

Part II: Regeneration. Picking Up the Pieces: Regeneration of Self. Picking Up the Pieces: Regeneration of Family. Part III: Parenting. Dual Tasks of Parenting and Grieving. Control. Parenting Bereaved Children. Implications and Future Directions.

Grieving Beyond Gender

Understanding the Ways Men and Women Mourn

Second Edition

Kenneth J. Doka, The College of New Rochelle, New York, USA, and Terry L. Martin, Hood College, Maryland, USA

Grieving Beyond Gender: Understanding the Ways Men and Women Mourn is a revision of Men Don't Cry, Women Do: Transcending Gender Stereotypes of Grief. In this work, Doka and Martin elaborate on their conceptual model of "styles or patterns of grieving" – a model that has generated both research and acceptance since the publication of the first edition in 1999. In that book, as well as in this revision, Doka and Martin explore the different ways that individuals grieve, noting that gender is only one factor that affects an individual's style or pattern of grief. The book differentiates intuitive grievers, where the pattern is more affective, from instrumental grievers, who grieve in a more cognitive and behavioral way, while noting other patterns that might be more blended or dissonant. The model is firmly grounded in social science theory and research. A particular strength of the work is the emphasis placed on the clinical implications of the model on the ways that different types of grievers might best be supported through individual counseling or group support.

CONTENTS: Part I: The Patterns of Grief. Introduction and Plan of the Book. Definitions: Understanding Grief. Patterns of Grief: Intuitive Grievers. Instrumental Grievers. Dissonant Responses. Part II: Pathways to Patterns. Personality as a Shaper of Patterns. The Role of Gender. Culture as a Shaping Agent. Part III: Implications and Interventions. Adaptive Strategies: Implications for Counselors. Strategies for Self-Help and Intervention: The Need for Interventive Intentionality. Conclusion.

Decision-Making near the End of Life

Issues, Developments, and Future Directions

Edited by James L. Werth, Jr., University of Akron, Ohio, USA, and Dean Blevins, University of Arkansas, Little Rock, USA

Decision Making near the End of Life provides a comprehensive overview of the recent developments that have impacted decision-making processes within the field of end-of-life care. The most current developments in all aspects of major underlying issues such as public attitudes, the impact of media, bioethics, and legal precedent provide the background information for the text. The authors examine various aspects of end-of-life choices and decision-making, including communication (between and among family, medical personnel, the dying person), advance directives, and the emergence of hospice and palliative care institutions. The book also explores a variety of psychosocial considerations that arise in decision-making, including religion/spirituality, family caregiving, disenfranchised and diverse groups, and the psychological and psychiatric problems that can impact both the dying person and loved ones.

CONTENTS: Werth, Blevins, Introduction. Field, How People Die in the United States. Webb, Effects of the Media/Public Attitudes. Cerminara, Legal Overview. Keespies, Preston, Miller, End-of-Life Choices. Chang, The Process of Medical Decision-making. Prevos, Miller, Dying in Institutions. Ditt, Advance Directives. Werth, Psychological/Psychiatric Issues. Wells, Allen, Family/Caregiving. Doka, Religion/Spirituality. Hayslip, Diversity/Disenfranchised/Oppressed Groups. Volcier, Decisions By and For Adults with Questionable Mental Capacity. Kazak, End-of-Life Decisions and Children. Crow, Raye, Personal Stories. Orentlicher, Conclusion.

Suicide Among Racial and Ethnic Minority Groups

Theory, Research, and Practice

Edited by Frederick T. L. Leong, Michigan State University, USA, and Mark M. Leach, University of Southern Mississippi, USA

Suicide is increasingly understood and predicted as an intersection of biological, psychological, cognitive, and sociocultural factors. We have some basic knowledge of these factors and how they interact, but presently we know very little about how culture can play a role as a variable that influences suicide. Suicide Among Racial and Ethnic Minority Groups goes a long way towards filling this gap by pulling together cutting edge empirical research from general cultural diversity literature and applying it to suicide assessment, treatment, and prevention theory and practice.

The Art of Grief

The Use of Expressive Arts in a Grief Support Group

Edited by J. Earl Rogers, Central Connecticut University, USA

Art and other expressive therapies are increasingly used in grief counseling, not only among children and adolescents, but throughout the developmental spectrum. Creative activities are commonly used in group and individual psychotherapy programs, but it is only relatively recently that these expressive modalities have been employed within the context of clinical grief work in structured settings. Packed with pictures and instructional detail, this book includes an eight-session curriculum for use with grief support groups as well as alternative modalities of grief art therapy.

Music of the Soul Composing Life Out of Loss

Joy S. Berger, The Hospice Institute,
Louisville, USA

"Berger's use of music as metaphor permeates every page, in language that is inspiring and easy to understand... this is a book that not only reaffirms the importance of music but also provides a signpost to new ways of thinking about palliative care." - Bob Heath, Bereavement Care

Music of the Soul guides the reader through principles, techniques, and exercises for incorporating music into grief counseling, with the end goal of further empowering the grieving person.

This interdisciplinary text draws in equal parts from contemporary grief/loss theory, music therapy research, historical examples of powerful music, case studies, and both self-reflecting and teaching exercises. Music is as much about beginnings as endings, and thus the book moves through life's losses into its new beginnings, using musical expression to help the bereaved find meaning in loss and hurt, and move forward with their lives.

When Professionals Weep

Emotional and Countertransference Responses in End-of-Life Care

Edited by Renee S. Katz, and Therese G. Johnson, both in private practice, Washington, USA

"Using end-of-life care as a broad tapestry upon which to work, the authors and their editors have woven together a sequence of chapters about health service and pastoral professionals who work with dying people and their families... Renee Katz and Therese Johnson not only have done a thorough job selecting exceptional authors from different settings but they themselves are also intimately part of the narratives both as solo chapter authors and as co-authors... I gratefully acknowledge the editors and authors of When Professionals Weep for the increased level of personal awareness I have gained through reading their work." - Shep Jeffreys, Death Studies

Diverse leaders in the field of death, dying, and bereavement, address the issues surrounding the intersection of the personal and the professional in the unique context of end-of-life care.

The Shame of Death, Grief, and Trauma

Edited by Jeffrey Kauffman, in private practice, Pennsylvania, USA

The Shame of Death, Grief, and Trauma presents a collection of unique and insightful essays sharing the common theme that shame is the central psychological and moral force in understanding death and mourning. Shame is not a concept that is as easily defined as one would think, and the authors hope to reveal its multiple meanings and significances to the reader. While the primary emphasis is on psychological and counseling perspectives and applications, the great variety of contexts in which shame is explored – psychology, social criticism, cross-cultural studies, literary criticism, philosophy, and history – give this book a wide appeal, both to scholars, students, and professionals in the humanities and social sciences, as well as to those in psychology and the other mental health professions.

CONTENTS: Part I: Introductory Essay. Kauffman, On the Primacy of Shame. Part II: A Personal Narrative. Costa, Side by Side. Part III: Psychological Reflections on Shame and Grief. Shermer, Between Shame, Death, and Mourning: The Predispositional Role of Early Attachments and the Sense of Self. *C. Bereavement

Studies of Grief in Adult Life

Fourth Edition

Colin Murray Parkes, St Christopher's Hospice, UK, Life President of Cruse Bereavement Care, in 1996 awarded an OBE for services to bereaved people and Holly G. Prigerson, Harvard Medical School, Massachusetts, USA

This book recognises that there is no single solution to the problems of bereavement but that an understanding of grief can help the bereaved to realise that they are not alone in their experience.

Long recognised as the most authoritative work of its kind, this new edition has been revised and extended to take into account recent research findings on both sides of the Atlantic. Additional information about different circumstances of bereavement is considered, covering traumatic losses, disasters, and complicated grief. Details on how social, religious, and cultural influences determine how we grieve are also included.

CONTENTS: Bowlby, Foreword to the First Edition. Lifton, Foreword to the Fourth Edition. Introduction. The Cost of Commitment. The Broken Heart. Trauma. Attachment and Loss. Mitigation. Anger and Guilt. Changing the Assumptive World. Complicated Grief. Determinants of Grief I: Kinship, Gender and Age. Determinants of Grief II: Mode of Death. When Death Enters the Therapeutic Space

Existential Perspectives in Psychotherapy and Counselling

Edited by Laura Barnett, Mayday University Hospital, Croydon, UK

Although it is a natural and inescapable part of life, death is a subject that is often neglected in psychotherapeutic literature and training. In When Death Enters the Therapeutic Space Laura Barnett and her contributors offer us insights into working with mortality in the therapeutic encounter.

Taking an existential perspective, the book brings together a variety of client groups, all of whom have experienced a confrontation with mortality, and encourages the reader to engage with and reflect upon the subject of death. Although this may initially evoke anxiety and distress, Barnett and her contributors introduce the reader to the 'vitality of death' (Koestenbaum): an energy and focus that can come from confronting our greatest fears and anxieties, including the anxiety aroused by our own mortality.

What Should I Believe?

Why Our Beliefs about the Nature of Death and the Purpose of Life Dominate Our Lives

Dorothy Rowe, Clinical Psychologist

"An important and moving account of our beliefs in life and death." - Lewis Wolpert, University College, London, UK

Bestselling author Dorothy Rowe explores how our beliefs about death influence the way we live. No one is sure what death actually is, and in a world where religion is increasingly used as a political power, it affects us all, whether we are religious or not.

Rowe separates political from personal and suggests that instead of forcing beliefs onto people as a defence against worthlessness, we should live at peace with ourselves and others, without depending on supernatural powers, and face life with courage and optimism.

People in Crisis Clinical and Diversity Perspectives

Sixth Edition

Lee Ann Hoff, Life Crisis Institute, USA,
Bonnie Joyce Hallisey, Curry College, Milton,
USA, and Miracle Hoff, Drake Counseling
Services, Fargo, USA

The first edition of People in Crisis, published in 1978, established success as a comprehensive and user-friendly text for health and social service professionals. The book and its following incarnations included critical life events and life cycle transition challenges, clearly pointing out the interconnections between such events, stressful developmental changes, and their potential for growth but also danger of suicide and/or violence toward others. This revised edition includes new case examples and expanded coverage of cross-cultural content, including 'commonalities and differences' in origins, manifestations, and crisis responses. The authors illustrate the application of crisis concepts, assessment, and intervention strategies across a wide range of health and mental health settings, as well as at home, school, workplace, and in the community.

CONTENTS: Part I: The Understanding and Practice of Crisis Intervention. Crisis Theory and Practice: Introduction and Overview. Understanding People in Crisis. Identifying People at Risk. Helping People in Crisis. Family and Social Network Strategies During Crisis. Part II: Crisis Related to Developmental and Situational Transitional States. Stress and Change During Life Passages Threats to Health and Self-image. Threats to Occupational and Residential Security. Part III: Suicide, Violence, and Catastrophic Events. Suicide and Other Self-destructive Behavior: Understanding and Assessment. Helping Self-destructive People and Survivors of Suicide. The Crisis of Victimization by Violence. The Violent or Abusive Person: Individual and Sociocultural Factors. Living and Surviving in Harm's Way

A Psychological Treatment
Handbook for Pre- and Post-Deployment of Military Personnel

Edited by Sharon Morgillo Freeman, Indiana/
Purdue University, USA, Bret A. Moore, Indian

Health Service, Montana, USA, and Arthur Freeman, Philadelphia
College of Osteopathic Medicine, USA

In Living and Surviving in Harm's Way, experts investigate the psychological impact of how warriors live and survive in combat duty. They address the combat preparation of servicemen and women, their support systems, and their interpersonal and intrapersonal experiences. The text maintains a focus on cognitive-behavioral interventions for treating various combat-related disorders, and addresses psychological health and adjustment after leaving the battlefield. The text is logically organized for easy reading and reference, and covers often overlooked topics such as preparation and training of service personnel, women in combat, and the indirect effects of combat stress on family. This book is written by clinicians who have in some ways experienced what they write about, and resonates with mental health professionals, servicemen and women, and their families. Any clinician hoping to treat a serviceman or woman effectively cannot afford to overlook this book.

CONTENTS: Beck, Foreword. Freeman, Freeman, Moore, Introduction.

Violent Death

Resilience and Intervention
Beyond the Crisis

Edited by Edward K. Rynearson, University of Washington, USA

"Encyclopedic in breadth and scholarly in tone, this wonderful volume is easy to read and immediately relevant to the clinician. The editor and authors are experts in studying and treating the many men, women, and children who have lost a loved one to violence."

- Michael F. Myers, University of British Columbia, and co-author of Touched By Suicide: Hope and Healing After Loss

This book pulls together a definitive collection of work on the theory and practice of clinical, spiritual, and emotional support after the experience of violent death – counseling beyond the crisis. The chapters in this volume, written by national and international experts in the field, provide the reader with the theoretical and clinical bases necessary for planning and implementing clinical and spiritual services to meet the needs of survivors, witnesses, family and community members of violent death.

The Children Who Lived

Using Harry Potter and Other Fictional Characters to Help Grieving Children and Adolescents

Kathryn A. Markell, Anoka-Ramsey Community College, Minnesota, USA, and Marc A. Markell, St. Cloud State University, Minnesota, USA

Harry Potter's encounters with grief, as well as the grief experiences of other fictional characters, can be used by educators, counselors, and parents to help children and adolescents deal with their own loss issues. The Children Who Lived is a unique approach toward grief and loss in children. Focusing on fictional child and adolescent characters experiencing grief, this book uses classic tales and the Harry Potter books to help grieving children and adolescents. Included in the text, and the companion CD, are a number of activities, discussion questions, and games that could be used with grieving children and adolescents, based on the fictional characters in these books.

CONTENTS: Introduction: The Children Who Lived. Using the Harry Potter Books by J. K. Rowling to Help Grieving Children and Adolescents. Hogwarts Houses and Other Ways to Identify with Characters. Thestrals and Ghosts: Death in the Harry Potter Books. Pet Loss and Human Emotion

A Guide to Recovery

Second Edition

Cheri Barton Ross, founder, Redwood Empire Veterinary Medical Association Pet Loss Support Group, California, USA, and Jane Baron-Sorensen, retired, patient care manager, Sonoma County's Department of Health Services, California, USA

This updated edition of Pet Loss and Human Emotion is a step-by-step guide to leading clients through this special kind of grief. It includes resources and a section on pet loss and natural disasters.

Pet loss needs to be addressed by therapists and others in the helping professions, to better enable them to help their clients through the loss of their companion animals. This unique guide is written for all professionals helping clients deal with the loss of a pet, and serves as a practical introduction to the field of human-animal bonding. Citing several case studies, it describes various techniques for helping clients when the bond with a pet is broken.

Pet Loss and Children

Establishing a Healthy Foundation

Cheri Barton Ross, founder, Redwood Empire Veterinary Medical Association Pet Loss Support Group, California, USA

"This thoughtful, thorough and sensitive book offers advice and insights for the parents, teachers, caretakers, and therapists who care for children suffering from the loss of a companion animal... This book enables adults to help children grow and learn from a painful life experience." - Enid Traisman, author of My Personal Pet Remembrance Journal

Explaining the concept of death to a child is a very difficult, confusing, and uncomfortable experience for a parent, educator, or therapist, and it is a topic that is often first introduced by the loss of a pet – sometimes a child's earliest exposure to loss and grief. Without readily available outlets for their feelings, the trauma of pet loss can remain with a child for life, and without help many adults feel inadequate and not up to the task. The aim of this book is to provide therapists, counselors, educators, parents, social workers, veterinarians, and physicians with resources to help children cope with the loss of a pet.

BOOKS BY LINDA GOLDMAN

Raising Our Children to Be Resilient

A Guide to Helping Children Cope with Trauma in Today's World

Linda Goldman, in private practice, Maryland, USA

"In Raising Our Children to Be Resilient, Ms. Goldman breaks new ground in the Literature of grief and recovery for children. There are many books with good advice on dealing with children's traumas, but this one contains a different kind of advice; namely, teaching our children to become more resilient in order to prevent the traumas from happening in the first place. It should prove to be a useful primer for parents, teachers, therapists, scout leaders, and others who work with children in this time of worry and anxiety." - Helen Fitzgerald, Training Director, American Hospice Foundation

In this timely and much-needed book, Linda Goldman addresses the many frightening events that impact our children by providing the reader with a seamless mixture of theory and practice garnered from her extensive experience in the field. Raising Our Children to Be Resilient includes trauma resolution techniques and case studies, discussions of the respective roles played by parents, teachers and the larger community as well as additional resources for those in a position to help children who have been traumatized.

Family Therapy with Suicidal Adolescents

Anthony P. Jurich, Kansas State University, USA

"Family Therapy with Suicidal Adolescents is an eminently practical book, giving clear guidelines on assessing and treating youngsters who express a wish to end their lives, and involving their families as the central resource in preventing this tragedy. It will be invaluable to both experienced clinicians and novices alike."

- Alan Carr, University College Dublin, Ireland

This book describes a blend of insight-oriented, behavioral, and strategic family therapy, which the author has developed over thirty-four years of dealing with suicidal adolescents. It aims not to replace other forms of therapy but to augment the therapist's own therapeutic style.

The book offers an informative and personally told story bringing together scholarship and meaningful glimpses into the thought processes of suicidal youth. Written in an understandable, friendly, and practical style, it will appeal to those in clinical practice, as well as graduate-level students pursuing clinical work.

Suicide

Strategies and Interventions for Reduction and Prevention

Edited by Stephen Palmer, Director, Centre for Stress Management, London, UK

"This valuable book has faced the subject, can be dipped into when required and offers help as well as a certain amount of comfort to anyone working with suicidal people." - Jenny Bloomer, Therapy Today

Suicide: Strategies and Interventions for Reduction and Prevention examines myths about suicide, explores facts and statistics at national and international levels, and uses client cases to uncover thoughts leading to suicidal behaviour. The editor offers an insight into what can be done in the community, and within therapeutic settings when working with this challenging client group.

Featuring chapters from a range of experienced practitioners, this book provides a wealth of information on strategies and possible interventions. The addition of a self-harm management plan, assessment checklists, and list of useful organizations makes it essential reading for both mental health professionals, and those in training.

SELECTED CONTENTS: Palmer, Preface. Cooper, Foreword. Part I: Suicide: Statistics, Research, Theory and Interventions. Part II: Personal Experience of Suicide. Part III: Three Therapeutic Approaches to Prevent Suicide. Part IV: Group Interventions. Part V: Appendices.
